Special Notice. Collections will, as usual, be taken up on EASTER SUNDAY in all the Catholic Churches of this City, in aid the Catholic Churches of this City, in aid of the Orphan Asylums. At no previous time have the necessities of the incitutions claimed more earnestly substantial uppaths and succes. In consequence of the unusually large another of orphans who have been maintained, the extraordinary prices of provisions and other necessaries, and diminished resources, the treasury is not empty, but obligations have been, incurred in anticipation of these collections, and which are to be satisfied from the proceeds. The generous response which every appeal from the same source has bitherto called forth inspires the confidence that the more intinations of the needful, not to say embarrassed, condition of the lisativities will be quite sufficient, without any formal appeal, to evoke similar aid in the present lostance.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY,

MY SCHOOLS AND SCHOOL-MASTERS: Or. THE HISTORY

or My EDUCATION. By High Millar, author of 'The Old Red Sandatone," "Footsteps of the Creator," &c. &c. This work is the plain unvariabled story of a working man -a Mason—who by dint of incessant struggling and perseverance has raised himself to name and fame. It abounds with interest. The writer tells his story admirably, and his career is one full of almost romantic tous in story action range, and in excess the properties of the periods; in science All classes of society will be interested in its periods; is especially in the library of the mechanic should it find a place, will excite in him and his family a desire to "go and do likewise."
